

Clinical Master in Family Medicine

Program Outline

The clinical Master in Family Medicine is a two-year clinically oriented program that consists of 92 weeks duration. The program encompasses core clinical courses along with specific courses that empower the program to develop research capacities. Trainees can consult with the supervisors regarding core clinical courses, research strategies, and processes.

Students who attained the Grade Point Average (GPA) of 3.0 or more will be granted a Master's degree after the satisfactory completion of the two-year curriculum and research projects.

Students who attain a GPA between 2.0 and 3.0 will be awarded a Diploma degree after the satisfactory completion of the two-year curriculum.

The program is implemented by a Director and decisions are made by an Academic Committee, consisting of members representing the main spheres in the program according to the rules and regulations of AGU.
